State Superintendent Selects Columbus High Student for Student Advisory Council

(Columbus, GA)-The State Superintendent of Georgia schools, Brad Bryant, names 50 Georgia students to his 2010-2011 Student Advisory Council; Hannah Liss, a Columbus High School senior, is one of the 50 advisory council members who will represent for Muscofee County. Liss and other council peers will meet three times throughout the school year to advise the Superintendent and the Georgia Department of Education on how state policies are impacting the classroom, discuss other education-related issues, and serve as the State Superintendent's ambassadors in school.

"This group will provide tremendous insight into how state policies are working in the classroom and allow me the opportunity to communicate directly with students in schools throughout Georgia," said Bryant.

More than 450 students applied to be a member of the Student Advisory Council. Members were selected based on the strength of essay answers, school and community involvement. The first meeting of the Student Advisory Council is Thursday, October 25, 2010, at the Georgia Department of Education office in Atlanta.
