MEDIA RELEASE

Cold Weather Preparations Underway

(Columbus, GA)—According to local weather forecasts, temperatures are expected to be below freezing Thursday and Friday morning. School administrators are making preparations to open the doors of the school for students at least 30 minutes prior to the start of school and ensure supervision of students in case of early arrivals and to prevent students from being out in the cold.

In addition, divisions are taking proactive measures to ensure buses and schools are heated and operational. Parents are encouraged to not leave their children unattended at bus stops or schools. Parents are also encouraged to make sure children are dressed in appropriate clothing for cold temperatures and wind.

For students who may normally walk to and from school, parents are encouraged to make transportation arrangements. We are continuously monitoring the weather forecasts and roadways because safety is priority for all.

Parents and employees should continue to check e-mail, phones and media weather reports for updates.
